Direct Wire For Use In War Crisis

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin met today for the second in their current series of talks on East-West differences over Berlin.

The meeting comes a day after Rusk announced at Geneva its readiness to accept installation of a Moscow-Washington direct wire for use in any future war-threatening crisis. It was considered possible that Rusk and Dobrynin might touch on arrangements for technical negotiations on setting up this unprecedented link.

Rusk was scheduled to fly to Paris tonight for a meeting opening Monday of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and for talks with French President Charles de Gaulle and other Western European leaders, including West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder.

While Southeast Asian defense problems will dominate the discussions in the SEATO conference, Rusk is certain to discuss German and Berlin problems with Schröder. He is expected to talk over with De Gaulle U.S.-French differences on European policy, although the State Department described Rusk's session with the French leader as a courtesy call.

Friday night, Rusk held a 45-minute conference with De Gaulle's ambassador here, Herve Alphand. The envoy said later that they had covered Berlin, the North Atlantic alliance, the European Common Market and SEATO.

Alphand also told reporters that France favors an "expansionist" Europe rather than an "inward-looking" European organization. He declared that the French government had taken the lead among the six Common Market nations in promoting development of policies for lowering trade barriers between the Common Market and outside countries such as the United States.

The proposed "hot line" between Washington and Moscow was suggested by the United States as a way of providing high speed communication which might be useful in avoiding war by accident in some international crisis.

NEW WORLD—This young girl's expression reveals what it means to have a whole new world opened to her; she has felt the world of sound. The Lexington School for the Deaf has been experimenting with an electric organ in hopes that children—many of whom have lost up to 60 per cent of their hearing—will be able to sense vibrations through their fingers.

Fires Rage From Maine to Georgia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fires fanned by roaring winds spread havoc Thursday from Maine to Georgia, killing at least three persons. Trees were uprooted and power lines fell as wind gusts were clocked up to 81 miles per hour.

Cold, snow and hail hit wide areas.

In New York City a workman was killed by a wind-tossed plank. In a Syracuse, N.Y., suburb a woman died of electric shock as she stepped from her car, which had become entangled in live wires. A man died in Passaic, N.J., when a fire-damaged building collapsed and showered debris on a parked car.

Winds were expected to diminish and temperatures to rise today.

The U.S. Weather Bureau blamed the disturbance on a deep low pressure system centered in Eastern Canada and a high pressure system in northern Missouri.

New England staggered under high winds, snow squalls and freezing temperatures. In northern Maine the mercury plunged into the 20s.

Power failures due to falling tree limbs harassed many New England communities.

Snow flurries, hail and winds hit upstate New York areas, knocking down trees and power lines.

A forest fire in New Castle County, Delaware, was said to be the largest in history for that region.

West Virginia had at least 79 woodland fires, almost all in the state's 11 southern counties. More than 500 men were recruited to fight the blazes.

In Virginia nearly 200 wind-whipped forest fires destroyed thousands of acres of timber.

In North Carolina, fires riddled the state from the mountains to the sea, destroying nine homes and two businesses.

In South Carolina, more than half of the state's 46 counties reported fires. The forestry department said the dry, hot weather plus the gusty winds made the fires extremely hard to control.

At least 80 forest fires were reported in Georgia, with some of the blazes eating up countless acres of timber.

In Tennessee, fires destroyed thousands of wooded acres.

Fraud Trial Set
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The trial of David M. Cohn, former Little Rock stock broker charged with using fraud in the sale of securities, will be held April 22 in federal district court here. Cohn, 35, was indicted in connection with the sale of stock last year and accused of pocketing company funds. He has denied the charges. Cohn has been free on bond since his arrest last Sept. 11.

Russia Ready for a Direct Line

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today it is ready to accept a direct telecommunications link between Washington and the Kremlin to prevent an accidental outbreak of world war. Soviet Ambassador Semyon K. Tserapkin made the announcement in a session of the 17-nation disarmament conference.

The direct link was originally proposed by the United States as a priority measure to relieve world tension and prevent accidental war.

Argentine Forces Talk Things Over

By SAM SUMMERLIN

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Army commanders and rebel navy leaders were to meet today to consider a conditional agreement hammered out by negotiators to end Argentina's four-day-old revolt.

There was no immediate indication whether diehard naval elements at Puerto Belgrano, 350 miles south of Buenos Aires—would agree to the pact. It reportedly calls for cutting the navy's 35,000 man force at least in half.

Terms of the conditional agreement were pounded out by loyalist military leaders and Rear Adm. Eadio Vazquez, the rebel fleet commander, at a two-hour post-midnight session in Buenos Aires. In a terse communique they said agreement in principle had been reached on requirements to halt the fighting and return the armed forces to normal.

The communique did not spell out terms. Informal sources at Bahia Blanca, adjoining the Puerto Belgrano base, said they called for:

1. Unconditional surrender of the naval fleet and air force.
2. Reduction of the navy's main force to a skeleton 2,500 men, which would at least halve the 35,000-man navy.
3. Surrender of navy men and civilians responsible for the revolt to be tried.
4. Repair by a naval unit of damage in the Magdalena area where the navy air force destroyed or damaged eight loyalist tanks and a number of buildings, killing 18.

The navy's strength has made it a commanding voice in Argentine politics ever since it played the major part in the overthrow of Dictator Juan Peron in 1955.

There was no indication that the army and air force, which remained loyal to President Jose Maria Guido, made any concessions concerning the June 23 presidential and congressional elections. The rebels said they rebelled because Guido planned to let the Peronists enter candidates and a Peronist victory was feared.

As his price for peace, Vazquez reportedly had demanded Guido's removal and cancellation of the elections.

A communique from Guido's loyalist military command said units sent to attack the rebels at Puerto Belgrano had been ordered to halt 55 miles from the big base.

Rusk to Meet Red Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk has arranged to meet with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin on Saturday for further talks on Berlin, the State Department reported today.

They will meet at noon for the second of a series of exploratory discussions they started here March 26.

The agreed purpose of the talks is to try to find ways of easing Soviet-Western disagreement over the future of Berlin. Rusk has held many such meetings with Dobrynin and other Soviet officials in the past two years, but none of them has turned up any solid prospects for a fresh approach to a Berlin settlement.

Jury Sentences Not Working

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The way juries fix punishments for law violators is "like shooting craps," a judge on Kentucky's highest court says.

"The idea of sentencing is to deter crime and it's not been working too well in this country," Judge John Palmer of the State Court of Appeals told the Kentucky Bar Association Wednesday. He said there was inequity of punishment by juries trying similar cases and also inequity from one area to another in the state. He suggested standardization of punishment.

Cuban Exiles Continue To Elude Forces

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Elusive Cuban exiles kept U.S. and British forces hopping today to rid the Keys of Florida and the Bahamas of guerrillas bent on harassing Cuban prime minister Fidel Castro.

British marines combed lonely Williams Cay, 70 miles southwest of Nassau, for munitions or other supplies believed cached there by unidentified men who fled at their approach.

Reinforced air and sea units of the Miami-based Seventh Coast Guard District watched for sneak departures by innocent-looking small craft which often have proved to be carrying heavily armed anti-Castro fighters.

Nodding peacefully at a Miami dock was the 35-foot motor boat Violynn III. It arrived Friday with its crew of 17 in the windup of a cruise that started as a Cuba raid and bogged down in Bahamas detention and a Nassau-to-Miami voyage shadowed by Coast Guard fliers—until they lost the little ship in darkness.

The only English-speaking member of the crew said the Violynn III rebuffed a Coast Guard cutter captain's demand that the raiders allow their boat to be boarded near the edge of Bahamas territorial waters.

Jerry Buchanan, 24, of Miami, was quoted by his brother, Jim, Pompano Beach Sun Sentinel newsmen, as saying that Evelio Duquesne, commanding the Violynn III, had him reply that in no case would boarders be permitted on the little craft, but that it would obey the cutter's request to proceed toward Miami.

Two U.S. citizens in the crew were questioned and released by immigration officials.

"I have plans to keep fighting communism and if this means fighting the Cuban regime, yes," Buchanan told newsmen.

His shipmate, Ramon Sanchez, said Duquesne "will keep fighting. He will fight any way possible until Cuba is free."

Buchanan and Sanchez said the Violynn III's sister ship, Omega I, was still operating "in international waters"—they wouldn't say where.

Takes Issue With Purpose of School Act

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Forrest Rozzell, executive secretary of the Arkansas Education Association, said Thursday a legislative act earmarking new funds for teacher salaries was not meant to hamstring needs of schools to expand curricula.

Rozzell took issue with reports that the measure, Act 258 of 1963, might make it difficult for some schools to expand services required to retain accreditation and that such expansion would have to be paid for with local funds.

The act was designed primarily to guarantee that teachers get a fair share of any increase in school revenues, he said. It provides that all new state aid money go for teachers salaries and that 60 per cent of any increase in local operating revenues go into the salary fund.

Rozzell said the law had adequate safeguards for expansion programs.

"The addition of a principal or other education services and the retention of accreditation by the North Central Association are undoubtedly of primary importance," he said. But he added that present teachers should not be denied salary increases in order to provide new services.

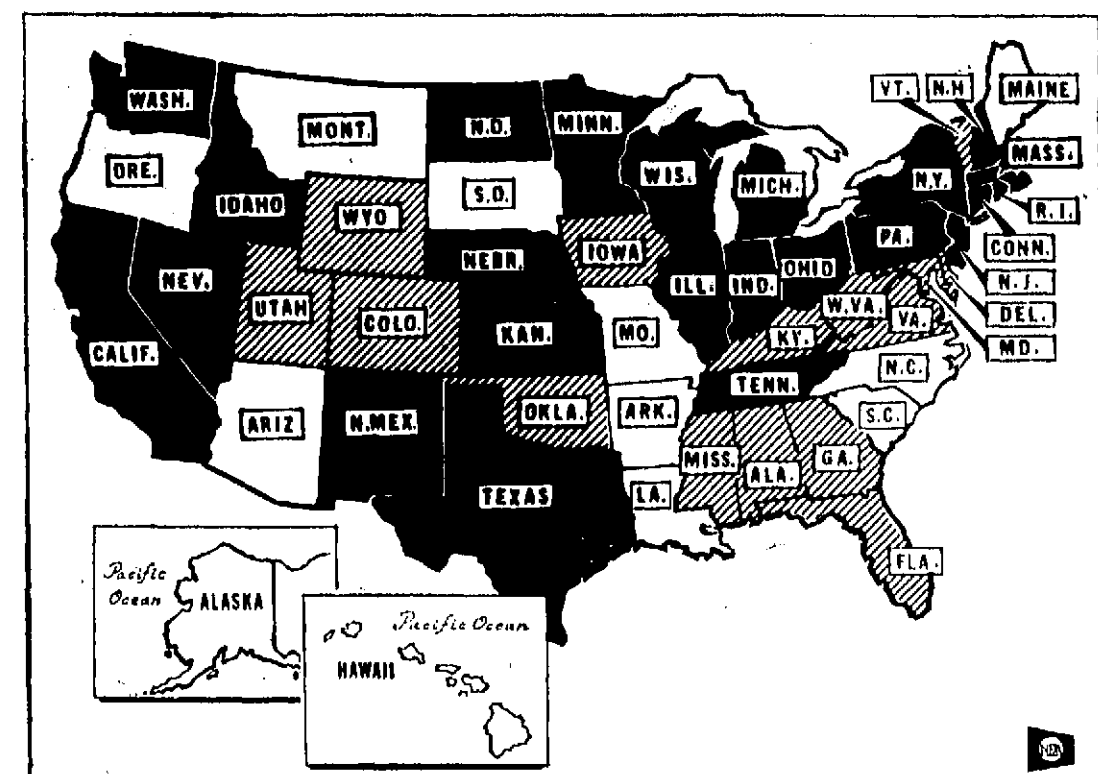

"After all, teachers make the school," he said.

AEA representatives and the State Department of Education worked closely with Gov. Orval E. Faubus in drafting the act, Rozzell said.

"I don't see how it can possibly hurt the educational program in the next two years. If experience indicates that it does work a hardship, then something could be done in the next legislature," he added.

Child Is Killed

HARRISON, Ark. (AP)—A two and a half-year-old child, Michael Griffin, was killed in a freak accident that occurred Thursday while he was playing on a piggy bank set at his family's farm home in the Crossroads community near here. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Griffin, said the child caught his neck in a V-shaped support and apparently choked.

No Question About It, the Greatest Wonder of All Is the Marvel of Nature

By MARY ANITA LASETER

There is something about the season of spring that gives all of God's creatures a lighter heart. Even the word, once uttered, cannot fail to make the speaker's lips curl in, at least, the semblance of a smile.

At night, if our ears were more sensitive, we could probably hear the blades of grass struggling through the top of the ground in much the same way a chick breaks out of its shell. Actually seeing this progress in motion is denied us, but we never cease to be delighted when the results become apparent.

Before grass becomes a lawn, it looks like an adolescent's beard. Both are merely in patches and rather weak. In both cases it is a struggle to make up one's mind to cut it, knowing full well that it won't be long before the distribution will be regular and so will the necessary for trimming.

Flowers are a bigger tease than their grassy brothers. You can view their progress more intimately. From a tight little bud the flower changes to a small secret package of expectant beauty. The human eye is usually given a hint of the color it will see before the green wrapping is completely thrown aside.

Nature remembered the fickleness of us humans, so her colorful display takes many forms as to hue, size, and shape. There is something which appeals to us all, though all are not pleased with the same things. The same is true in other aspects, come to think of it.

Trees are reaching, black arms or cold, icy fingers throughout the winter, but when spring-time comes, they don their prettiest green dresses and sometimes even put a few flowers in their hair. In the spring all trees are feminine and, like a loving mother, enjoy cradling the young in their arms. Birds flock to them, and children want to climb above the gnarled knees to the lacy fingers.

The marvel of nature is, indeed, ever-old, ever-new. G. D. Boardman certainly right when he evaluated the situation in this way:

"The ignorant man marvels at the common; the greatest wonder of all is the regularity of nature."

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The city Council has passed a resolution prohibiting the display of the Nazi swastika or the Soviet hammer and sickle.

The ordinance, passed Wednesday, was submitted following a disturbance at a Miami Beach hotel last month. Police took into custody two men identified as members of the American Nazi party.

In France Strikes Are Different

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

PARIS (AP)—In the normal tradition of organized labor a strike is when a lot of employees go off the job, picket the place and stay out until all or some of their demands are met.

The French, with fine Gallie flair, regard a strike in a totally different light. This attitude prevails generally except for French coal miners, who act as if they've been studying American labor practice.

Strikes have been hitting France periodically for some months in varied fields of industry and endeavor. They are French-type strikes, however, and this may also be defined as public nuisance in gigantic proportions.

Take the metro (subway) workers. They call two-hour or four-hour strikes at surprise hours. People who are trying to get to work fume, walk, hitch rides or try to catch taxis. Everybody's temper gets a little thin.

But the metro strike is against the government and the people in government who matter don't ride the metro anyway. The brief loss in revenue can't be large. Some resigned Frenchmen sit out these strikes, muttering angrily, until the trains rumble through the tunnels again.

At the end of these strikes everybody goes cheerfully back to work. Only the people—who have nothing to say about metro wages in the first place—are inconvenienced.

The electrical workers do the same thing. They make surprise cuts in current. The gas workers lower pressure in the mains. Industry takes a temporary setback and housewives raise Cain because the vacuum doesn't work and the metros are gloomily silent again, for without power they black out.

In an hour or so it's all over and things are normal.

The bus workers follow suit. Great masses of grumbling people are late to work, don't get to work at all, walk or hunt for taxis. But in a couple of hours the buses are roaring through the streets again.

If the primary objective is to let the government know they are not satisfied, the metro people, the utility workers and the bus crowd probably have a point. A lot of Parisians think this could be done better by committee. Then people could get to the office and the vacuum would work.

Fighters Are Dispersed To Help Defense

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dispersion of more than 100 Air Force jet fighters next summer will reduce their vulnerability to Soviet missile knockout while keeping them in position to intercept any attacking Russian bombers.

The Air Force announced Friday that three squadrons of interceptors will be shifted, two beefed up, two others disbanded and their planes redistributed to other units.

Involved are 1,200-mile-an-hour F101 Voodoos and 1,500 mile-an-hour F106 Delta Darts in squadrons in California, Oregon, Washington State, Massachusetts, Delaware, and Maryland, just outside Washington, D.C.

In all, about 900 U.S. jets are assigned to the North American Air Defense Command.

The announcement said the dispersal is aimed at giving Air Force fighter interceptors maximum survivability in the event of a ballistic missile attack upon this country.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and the Air Force have been concerned for some time about a situation which finds air defense units sharing fields with such prime missile targets as Strategic Air Command bombers.

Thus, defense officials have feared, the Russians might be able with a single nuclear missile blow to knock out both bombers and the U.S. fighters whose mission would be to meet any Soviet bomber assault following up a missile strike on this country.

McNamara told Congress recently the Pentagon proposes to disperse air defense forces further in the fiscal year starting July 1 "by providing additional facilities at a number of U.S. interceptor dispersal bases."

This action will permit the spreading out of about one-quarter of the interceptor force "for extended periods of time," he said.

During the Cuban crisis last fall, virtually all the interceptors—armed with nuclear-tipped air-to-air rockets—were dispersed widely around the country.

Pope to Ask UN Police Acceptance

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A Roman Catholic prelate said today Pope John XIII, in his forthcoming encyclical on world peace, will call on all people to accept a United Nations police force.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Ernesto Pisoni, writing in an Italian newspaper, said the encyclical would deal with what he called "just war and unjust war, for defense or for aggression, cold war, and internal and civil war supported from abroad."

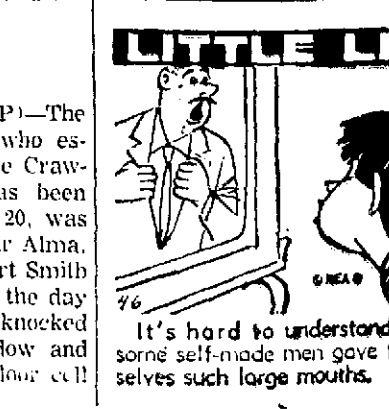

Msgr. Pisoni's report on the encyclical came as Vatican sources disclosed the document probably will be issued next Wednesday.

The Vatican informants said the encyclical, to be called "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth), will amount to a Magna Carta for peace for all men and all nations.

Msgr. Pisoni, former director of the Roman Catholic daily Italia and now a writer on religious matters for Milan's influential Corriere Della Sera, wrote that the encyclical will discuss peace "as the normal ideal of coexistence and also war, which it is tragic opposite, its contradiction, its denial."

AP Revising Output of World News

NEW YORK (AP)—The Associated Press is gearing its news output to meet "a more discriminating, intelligent and knowledge-hungry generation," Wes Gallagher, AP general manager, said today in his annual report.

The worldwide news cooperative is meeting the challenge through use of new techniques, he said.

"In an era where man probes the universe with missile fingers and primitive people leap turbulently into the 20th century, The Associated Press faces a task as difficult as any in its 114-year history," he said.

Gallagher cited "the grim nuclear diplomacy of the cold war," the hot war in Viet Nam and bloody struggles in the Congo, space exploration and segregation turmoil as illustrating the complexity and variety of modern news.

"This torrent of news required new techniques in handling and delivery which were met by a highly trained, professional staff," he said.

Gallagher's report was mailed to AP members in advance of The Associated Press annual meeting and luncheon in New York City April 22.

Gallagher said breakthroughs have occurred in solving technical problems so that news and pictures can be transmitted "at a speed and with fidelity only dreamed of a few years ago."

He noted, for example, that AP's new computer, producing tape fed at 1,000-words a minute into telegraph circuits, delivers stock tables in type a few minutes after the close of markets.

"The major problems are not quantity, speed or worldwide resources, important though they are in serving the needs of more than 8,000 members and subscribers around the world," he said.

"The more difficult and compelling task is to redirect our news-gathering efforts to meet a more discriminating, intelligent and knowledge-hungry generation."

"We are constantly searching for new techniques, new ideas and new ways of presenting the news," Gallagher said some things that have been inaugurated in the past year with excellent response from the membership include:

AP World Spotlight a part of five stories from overseas illuminating and explaining the news for Sunday newspapers.

AP Special Report, stories about people and places from this country and abroad for midweek afternoon newspapers.

Enterprise news and newsphoto combinations aimed at Monday morning and Monday afternoon newspapers, which are normally comparatively light on spot news.

Assignment of a task force of routine-free top reporters for special enterprise copy, for both the spot news and newsfeatures reports.

Newsfeatures "extras," close to the news stories "done with the depth and polish members have come to expect of newsfeatures copy, but sent only a few days in advance of Sunday release because of their timeliness."

Packaging in capsule form of groups of foreign and Washington items which "are interesting but not earth-shaking."

Greatly increased use of Q-and-A interview technique.

"Instant" background summaries to be used as boxes with complicated major news stories.

DOROTHY DIX

SHE PUSHED HIM INTO THE BATHTUB!

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I like a boy and he likes me but one minute we're kissing, and the next spitting. Although, I'm 19 and he 22, we act like a couple of kids. Yet otherwise we're stable enough. He's got a good job and so have I. We saved toward our marriage, had wedding plans but now it's anybody's guess as to whether that marriage will ever take place. Here's the latest hassle we got into and if you can help me straighten it out, you're an answer to prayer.

I had planned to go home for the week-end and the boy friend said he'd drive me to the bus station if I waited till Saturday night. I waited and he never showed up! His boss had sent him out-of-town on an emergency call and there was no way of getting word to me. This I didn't know and was I mad! The more so, because I had to be up at dawn Sunday morning to catch the only other bus home. He phoned my folks and left word for me to call him. Well, I didn't, nor could I go to the phone when he long-distanced me that night.

Last Saturday night came the crisis. This time I answered the phone. Would I go to a party with him? It sounded like a nice affair and I said yes. Then he called back and said he'd heard I had been going with other fellows so the date was off. "Am I out of my life?" I asked, then hung up without even a goodbye.

A few minutes later a friend of his phoned and invited me to the same party. We went and there this boy friend of mine was at the party with another girl. She flirted something terrible. I didn't say a word. Then I had to go to the bathroom and there he and she were, hugging and kissing. He said, "Oh, Lord, look who's here!"

This was too much for me. I pushed him into the bathtub, turned on the shower, grabbed my umbrella (it was standing in the corner) and started whamming him. He turned off of the tub and quietly pried my fingers loose from the umbrella, then had the nerve to ask to take me home. I threw everything I could lay hands on at him. He just smiled, grabbed me by the arms, put on my coat, marched me downstairs to a taxi, and paid the driver to drive me home. "I'll see you Monday night," he called. Should I see him or should we call it quits? I truly love him but I've never had this trouble with any other boys I've gone with. What's wrong? —Confused.

Dear Confused: You write from the heart with all the pathos and humor that go with young love. If you didn't care, you wouldn't give your boy friend a dunking or wham him with your umbrella, and he knows it. That's why he keeps coming back, for he loves you too.

Of course you should see him next Monday night. Look your prettiest and be sweet, gentle and feminine. If he proposes marriage, as he most likely will, say yes, and the sooner the better. After you marry and your love matures, you'll look back upon these stormy episodes and laugh. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "A Sense of Humor."

Dear Helen: An elderly couple have recently moved into our apartment building. We were very friendly after they came and still are, but my wife and children are fast becoming nervous wrecks because they insist upon knowing everything we do. Is there a nice way of asking them not to be so nosy? —Just-a-Husband

Dear Just: Your family is evidently the one interest these old people have. If you can provide them with something to occupy their time and thoughts, your problem will be solved. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflets, "Ten Rules to Help Oldsters Stay Young," and "Turn Your Spare Time into Cash." If opportunity offers, pass them along; otherwise, study the leaflets yourselves and in conversation bring up the suggestions they offer.

Dear Helen: I am one of your readers. Recently I foolishly gave $100, to a get-acquainted club just because I was lonely. That money was earned the hard way. Let this be a warning to others. The law should take action. —Burnt Fingers

Dear Burnt: If you have proof of fraud, take the evidence to the district attorney.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I'd made that phone call from the Columbia Club on West 43rd Street. My own apartment is on East 38th Street in the Murray Hill section. It was a pleasant evening to walk, and I took my time.

Just as I turned to go up the steps someone came out of the shadows.

"Mr. Ryan?"

It was Dawn Terrill. The summer print dress she was wearing did more for her figure than the slacks and shirt-waist she'd had on at the apartment. She carried one of those shoulder-strap handbags, and she was wearing black cotton gloves. She'd had on no make-up at the apartment. Now there was lipstick, sparingly applied. She looked like someone from Hollywood who was lost.

"Well, well," I said, fatuously. "Could I talk to you for a few minutes, Mr. Ryan?"

"Sure," I said. "Will you risk my apartment, or do you want to sit here on the front steps?"

"I'll risk the apartment," she said. Her voice sounded unsteady, as though going in with me was a big adventure.

My apartment is on the second floor. There isn't much to it. There's a big living room with a fireplace and bookcases, also a small bedroom, kitchenette and bath. The furniture is just odds and ends of comfortable stuff.

"I'm sorry to have to admit there are etchings," I said. It was a try at a feeble joke. She didn't get it.

"They're nice," she said, looking at the black-and-whites over the mantel.

She'd taken off the black glasses. Her eyes were closed and the tips of the fingers of her right hand were pressed against her eyelids.

She drew a deep, unsteady breath. "My mother didn't tell you the whole truth about what happened this afternoon."

"Oh?"

"I think she knew one of the men — the one who beat her up."

"What makes you think so?"

"He — he kept calling her

"Frances dear." "Don't try to get tough with me, Frances dear." "Sorry, Frances dear, but you asked for it!" And when he left: "So long, Frances dear."

"You were down the hall in your room," I said.

"They weren't whispering."

"You asked her about it after I'd gone?"

Dawn nodded. "She — she said it was probably just a fresh way of talking. He obviously knew whose apartment he was in."

"You don't think it was just a fresh way of talking?"

"I think he knew her and she knew him," Dawn said.

"Did Matt ask her about it when he came back?" I said.

"He hadn't come back when I left."

"You think he may have known who it was, too?" I'd begun to think that some time ago.

"It's funny he should just run out like that. I — I thought perhaps he couldn't risk an encounter with the police. He had to say to call them or look funny in front of you. Did you notice how that second detective looked when

"Persuade Mr. Higby to forget what happened this afternoon. Persuade him to drop this insane idea of buying race horses."

"Why?"

"Because, if mother knew that man, don't you see there's something that can be dug out about her."

"What?"

"I don't know," she said, in that toneless voice.

"You think something was taken from the apartment and your mother just isn't telling?"

"Is anything missing?"

"No."

The two Terrill women had made me feel uneasy about my client. The young one obviously was fond of Matt Higby, but it was her mother's history she wanted to keep buried.

'Disraeli' Show Was a Good One

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Like "Victoria Regina" last season, NBC's "Hall Marks" Hall of Fame, Thursday night, "The Invincible Mr. Disraeli," was more a series of vignettes than a play.

About two thirds of the 90 minute program was primarily devoted to the British statesman's marriage and, incidentally, his rise from young member of Parliament to cabinet rank. During the last half hour, the widower Disraeli, as Victoria's prime minister, devoted himself to his queen and swung a 20-million pound loan which somehow made her empress of India.

The handsome settings included a London town house, a Victorian palace and the halls of Parliament. But it was primarily a witty and clever statesman.

Mr. Disraeli, played by Trevor Howard with a quip or a well-rounded phrase on his lips, made speech after speech. Greer Garson playing as usual the loving wife, aged magnificently if rather abruptly. It was not one of the Hall of Fame's greatest efforts. But the actors were fine and the color was beautiful.

The British prime minister and his wife may have been the luminaries of the week's television, but little, white, pock-marked balls are the stars of the weekend. The Masters golf tournament, with the coveted prizes, will be televised Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

Peter Molnar, the CBS sports-show producer, and staff of some 70 have been preparing for the event for months.

Recommended weekend viewing:

Saturday—Masters golf tournament, CBS, 5-6 (Eastern Standard Time)—from National Golf Club, Augusta, Ga.; "Hootenanny," premiere, ABC, 8:39-9—folk music program.

mother mentioned Mr. Higby's name?"

I had noticed but it hadn't seemed sinister. Higby was a very rich man, probably not unknown.

"Mr. Higby is a gangster, you know," Dawn said.

"I guess he broke the law a good many years ago," I said.

"As far as I know his record's clean and has been for a long, long time."

"It's the kind of person he is, not what his record is."

"Didn't your mother object to your coming to me with this story, Dawn?"

"My mother," she said, in a toneless voice, "has passed out."

"What is it you want me to do?" I asked, after a moment.

Stuttgart boasts a pear tree that is nearly as old as the city itself — and still blossoms profusely each year.

The tree, at the Vaden Slifer residence, was planted in 1882 by pioneer Stuttgart settler Milton March, grandfather of Mrs. Ward Harris Sr.

Mississippi Pastor Cites Good Movies' Non-Support

The local theaters disclosed today ever since they inaugurated a policy of not playing "adult" pictures on Sunday their Sunday attendance has fallen almost 50 per cent — while business on weekdays with adult-theme films has definitely increased.

In other words, the truly great motion pictures aren't getting sufficient box-office support from the American public. An editorial on the subject is being given national publicity right now. It appeared in the trade magazine Motion Picture Exhibitor for March 27. The editorial was a reprint of a clergyman's article in a Mississippi weekly paper.

The clergyman, Father Osborne Moyer, local Episcopal rector, wrote March 7 in the South Reporter, Holly Springs, Miss., as follows:

I am an incurable movie fan. And I say that without any hesitation, qualification or apology. I have been going to and enjoying the movies regularly for about 40 years now and have watched the evolution of the motion picture from its silent, flickering, small screen days at the large screen with its breathtaking colors and stereophonic sound that we now take for granted.

All right, so what, you say. Just this: I am frankly puzzled about the movie-going habits of our local populace. Sure, it's your business whether you go or not, but why is it that when the best motion pictures play here there is only a handful of people who bother to see them? Why is it that such fine and outstanding movies as "Gigot" and "The Miracle Worker" play at almost empty houses here, and a grade 8 movie such as "Isle of Sin" will play to a packed house?

Some people that I have questioned about not attending movies come up with the old thread-bare quip of, "They have just gotten so trashy." But usually these same people sit glued to their screens watching the muck and violence that is the daily TV diet. I'm the first to admit that there are plenty of trashy movies in circulation, just as there are countless books of smut being published today, but that is no reason to quit reading good books. And certainly, it was inevitable that movies, as they came of age, would present "adult" themes on the screen. Yes, some of these are handled poorly, but in some instances it is quite possible that some people, seeing their own problems acted out on the screen, have gotten a better perspective. Identification and projection can be most helpful in some cases.

Then too, the motion picture house has helped solve some of the problems of leisure time for the young people, especially in small towns where recreation facilities are limited or non-existent. Like the corner drug store, the movie is where they meet their friends. I would rather see a young couple holding hands on the back row at the movie than parked in a car on a lonely stretch of country road.

If you are one of those people who have not seen a movie (and brag about it) since Colleen Moore made "So Big", you don't know what you have missed. Let's stop looking down our noses and enjoy some of the fine motion picture entertainment that is being offered us by our local theatre.

It makes you feel quite a bit better, doesn't it? Here is a clergyman with a realistic, positive approach that others would do well to copy. Thank you, Father Moyer, and thank you, Bob Bostick, National Theatre Supply vice-president and southern district manager in Memphis, for calling the column to our attention.

Next was Guernsey's Raven-craft of Guernsey who took first in the 220, the broad jumps and ran the relays. Saratoga's Hughes took first in the 880 and the mile run.
Stephens of Guernsey won the shot and Tullis of Guernsey won the discus. Saratoga won all the relays and Guernsey came in second.

An empty cross on a lonely hill. What a story it tells! The story of God's plan of human redemption. A story packed with all the drama of human emotion and divine sacrifice. What do you see when you look at the empty cross? Can you see the world's sin which made necessary this cross? Do you see the Christ of Calvary who died there for you? Do you see the broken heart of your Heavenly Father, who loves you even when you are all but impossible? Go to church Sunday...take another look at the empty cross and be real glad that the love of God is broader than the measure of man's mind. That cross was made empty for you.

So They May See == 2 Corinthians 13 == So They May Hear

THIS IS THE THIRD TIME I am coming to you. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established.

2. I told you before, and foretell you, as if I were present, the second time; and being absent now I write to them which heretofore have sinned, and to all other, that, if I come again, I will not spare:

3. Since ye seek a proof of Christ speaking in me, which to you-ward is not weak, but is mighty in you.

4. For though he was crucified through weakness, yet he liveth by the power of God. For we also are weak in him, but we shall live with him by the power of God toward you.

5. Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?

6. But I trust that ye shall know that we are not reprobates.

NOW I PRAY TO GOD that ye do no evil; not that we should appear approved, but that ye should do that which is honest, though we be as reprobates.

8. For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth.

9. For we are glad, when we are weak, and ye are strong: and this also we wish, even your perfection.

10. Therefore I write these things being absent, lest being present I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to destruction.

11. Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you.

12. Greet one another with an holy kiss.

13. All the saints salute you.

14. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen.
